Reds Bid $50,000 for Young Hurler, But He Seems Destined for Red Sox

AP Feature Service

LOUISVILLE—In lanky six-foot-three Pitcher Cecil Carlton Hughson the Louisville Colonels have the American Association belief they have money in the bank.

Recently after Hughson, who came from Kyle, Tex., pitched the Colonels to a 3 to 0 win over Indianapolis Jewell Ens, scout for the Cincinnati Reds, hurried into the office of Executive Secretary Wade Dudley of the Colonels and said:

"Call Donie (Donie Bush, manager and part owner of the Colonels) and tell him I will give him $50,000 for Hughson."

Dudley thanked the veteran baseball scout and promised to keep his offer in mind but privately Bruce says "Hughson's worth more."

From Big State

Hughson, a graduate of Texas university, where he played varsity baseball from 1933 to 1937, broke into professional ball immediately after his graduation. Then he signed with the Boston Red Sox. He was sent to Moultrie in the Georgia-Florida league where he won eight and lost six before . . . New York golf writers still are moaning about the fox paw they committed during the National Open in asking Clayton Heafner to play poker with them.

CECIL HUGHSON

The Red Sox need pitchers, too

with an earned run average of 2.37.

The next year with Canton in the Mid-Atlantic league Hughson won 22 and lost seven for an earned run average of 3.90. In 1939 he was with Scranton of the Eastern league and won 12 and lost six. He worked as a relief pitcher in 41 games.

The big right-hander has a fast ball and is developing a troublesome curve.

At present he has a tendency to become irritated when opposing batters start smacking his offerings. Recently against the hard-hitting Kansas City Blues he was hit for a single, double, triple and then two home runs by successive batters, before being sent to the showers. After the triple he appeared bewildered with an "these guys can't do this to me" expression on his face.

Not Too Good

In his first six starts this year for the Colonels Hughson won two and lost three.

During the winter, Hughson and his wife, Rowena, whom he married in Texas three years ago, run a cattle ranch he owns near Kyle.

Local baseball experts say don't be surprised if Hughson gets a chance in the major leagues next year and most likely it will be with the Red Sox, parent club of the Colonels.

NEW YORK, June 25—In the five weeks the Yanks, Giants and Dodgers have played 11 Sunday games——and all they got out of them was one tie . . . Maybe the Tennessee operatives can find out why the proposed Fordham-Tennessee football game is going to the Cleveland municipal stadium. We can't get the dope here . . . Torby MacDonald, one of Harvard's best backs last year, got a fat offer to join up with the Yanks and is talking things over with his parents. He's an outfielder.

Commercial Street Property Transfer Is Voted by Council

To Be Used for Blacksmith Shop; Petitions for Street Work Submitted to City.

Property at 555 Commercial street was transferred from the residential to the commercial district at the request of the owner, Mrs. Eva Pierce, when city council met last night in city hall. The request was given public hearing, following second and third readings of the ordinance.

Mr. Pierce said today that with the transfer approved, he will move his custom blacksmith shop from the rear of 151 North State street to a shop on the Commercial street property. He said the move would be made some time between Aug. 1 and Sept. 15. The city planning commission approved the transfer before it was presented to council.

Council authorized the Marion Water Co. to lay water mains and install fire hydrants on Uncapher avenue and on East Fairview street. The Uncapher avenue project will be a six-inch main for a distance of 504 feet south of the existing main and a two-inch main south for a distance of 324 feet from the end of the six-inch main. On Fairview street a six-inch main will be run 150 feet from a point 500 feet east of the existing main.

Parking Measure Adopted

Parking of motor and other vehicles will be permitted from now on only on the inside curb of Linden place, according to action taken by council to regulate parking on the circular drive.

Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell was authorized to pay the state highway department $1,000 as the city's portion of the expense of repairing and resurfacing West Center street from the Erie railroad right-of-way west to the end of the street. The project was completed about a year ago.

Councilman Basil Williams, speaking for Walter A. Dorsey, chairman of the street and alley committee who was absent due to the death of his mother, presented petitions for curbing and gutters on Herman street from Davids street to the railroad, for curbing and gutters on Sugar street from Davids street to Mound street, for the widening of Columbia street between Pearl street and High street and for resurfacing Olney avenue between Bellefontaine avenue and Foster Lane.

Mr. Williams said it was the committee's recommendation that the Herman and Sugar street projects be made a part of the WPA program and that before curbing and gutters are installed that the streets be widened from 26 to 30 feet. On the Columbia street request, he said the committee after much consideration recommended that the street be widened on both sides and that if possible, the project be carried through to Davids street. It was the committee's recommendation, he said, that on the Olney avenue request the petition be returned to the circulators to see if they could extend the resurfacing project through to Columbia street, since the original petition asked for resurfacing of only a part of the street.

Remonstrance Presented

A remonstrance against the widening of Pearl street was presented by Mr. Williams, who said the committee felt that the logical thing to do will be to widen the street on both sides and "center it up" at Columbia street.

Fourteen persons were in the audience, including City Engineer Tom S. Cathers.

Miss Olga Morganthaler of 300 South Prospect street, speaking for a group of Columbia street property owners, asked when they would know whether they will be able to preserve their trees if the Columbia street widening project is approved. Mr. Williams said that by following the committee's recommendation that the street be widened on both sides, instead of only on one, he felt the project can be carried through with a minimum of property damage.

Harry D. Cahill, president protem, assured A. H. Marks of 231 Pearl street that the matter of the widening of Pearl street would not be taken up last night but that some action probably would be taken at the next meeting, July 8. Mr. Marks, making his third appearance before council, said he had authority from property owners to fight the widening project. He said they felt that if it was "so vitally necessary to widen Pearl street from Church to Columbia street, it's equally necessary to widen it clear through." Mr. Williams said he felt the committee was doing what Pearl street residents wanted them to do, to which Mr. Marks replied that the original petition called for widening of only one side of the street, and that as set up at present the project will do considerable damage to trees and properties.

Sewer Complaint

Frank F. Foster of 1071 East Church street, spokesman for a trio of residents of the vicinity, told council that there has been water in basements of homes in that section three times in the last 10 days. He was assured by Mr. Cahill and Mr. Cathers that the city engineering department and safety-service director are working on the complaints from residents of several sections of the city and that thorough investigations will be made.

Councilman Harry Wilhelm said he had been notified by Huber Co. officials that they would post a notice to employes telling them that parking of cars on the west side of North Greenwood street near the plant will not be permitted in the future.

Placing of a street light on the corner at the end of Durfey drive was recommended by Councilman George Primm of the light committee. A complaint by Mrs. Della Bensinger of 130 Park boulevard, that Marion Steam Shovel Co. employes park cars on both sides of the boulevard, making it impossible for residents to use the street, was referred to the police committee and a request of Avondale residents, presented by Mr. Primm, that high grass on the west side of the street from Silver street north, be mowed, was referred to the health committee.

Mr. Cahill presided in the absence of President Robert H. Sharf, who was out of the city. All other members were present except Mr. Dorsey. In a session in the office of Mayor Russell C. Snare prior to the meeting, council members took up a collection to purchase flowers for Mr. Dorsey's mother.

FIRST SESSION OF BAPTIST BIBLE CONFERENCE HELD

A large crowd attended the opening service of the Bible conference Monday night at Emmanuel Baptist church. Rev. Tom Presnell of Rogersville, Pa., is conducting the conference. He gave as three things to be remembered in interpreting Scripture first, that the Bible is a spiritual book and can be understood only under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, second, that God, in revealing His will and mind to man is limited by the meager vocabulary and experiences of man, and third that the Bible is given alone to reveal the purpose and plan of God for mankind and is not a text book on science or philosophy.

"God in His workings does not proceed as does man in a shipshod, haphazard sort of a way. He has definite purposes and design," he said. He continued by saying that the philosophy of the Bible is the only complete philosophy in the world. "We accept no assumptions, we know God, with Him we begin. The scriptures proceed to bring an ever unfolding and enlightening revelation concerning the state of man and the provisions of God in meeting his need."

Lectures each afternoon at 2:30 will deal with the theme of prophecy. The theme of the evening services during the week will concern God's plan of the ages. Mrs. Presnell will preside at the evening services and also will present special vocal and accordion numbers.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, June 26

THE ASTRAL auguries are for a particularly lively and enterprising day, with much stirring of an entirely unforeseen nature There may be sudden occurrences calling for a change of plans, objectives and possibly scenes of operation While these arrangements should culminate in unlooked for advantage with innovation and audacity proving the test of speculation or adventure yet there is need for vigilance against snares intrigue or other undercover tactics There should be much felicity in intimate affiliations

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of surprises and unpredictable events affecting all manner of new experience in business as well as private life Opportunity and direction of new pastures may result in reorientation of the life and its purpose all to culminate in progress surprising fulfilments with perhaps romance and adventure But withall there is a menace from duplicity intrigue and deep-laid schemes to be alert to since they are viciously undermining

A child born on this day may be progressive enterprising romantic and adventurous with a strong bent toward the new untried and experimental both in intellectual and sound business projects

Common Colds Not So Contagious, School Science Club Survey Shows

Student Group Reports Results of Study of 40 Cases; Plans Bigger Survey Next Year.

Colds of the common garden variety from which many Marionites are even now sniffling and coughing in unseasonable June weather are not nearly as contagious or infectious as many people think.

That at least, is the conclusion of the Scientific Research club of Thomas A. Edison Junior High school after a survey made among fellow pupils at the school.

Although the conclusion does not have definite scientific value since the survey was limited to about 40 boys and girls instead of a large body of persons, it does indicate a trend, according to Mark H. Baker, sponsor of the club.

To Resume Study

When school starts in the fall and the club is again active, the group plans to make a more careful study of diet, using a control group of at least 100 boys and girls who did not have colds last winter.

In two out of every three cases studied by the club no one else in the family had colds, according to the complication of data a finding which the club and the sponsor believe is an outstanding result of the survey.

Here are some of the facts about colds as compiled from the survey:

About one-fourth of the persons studied slept 10 or more hours a night, some had slept as little as 20 hours in five nights. loss of sleep preceded colds in about one-fourth of the cases there was no evidence to lead to a conclusion that overwork caused any of the cases to have cold there was definite evidence that long periods of exposure to cold and wearing of damp clothing were contributing factors to colds almost one half of the persons affected had been angry or otherwise upset nervously just prior to contracting the cold; there was much evidence to prove that high strung temperamental people are more subject to colds, two-thirds of the students with colds drank neither orange nor tomato juice daily there was a tendency toward colds among the highly intelligent cases, although in one case an extremely bright pupil had had only one cold in five years.

How Colds Start

Much evidence showed that an easy way to contract a cold in winter is to take a hot bath and go out-doors immediately, 90 per cent of the cases studied showed that the cold had started with a headache or sore throat or both, weather changes were shown to actually have little effect on causes of colds one third of the cases ate meat twice a day but no attempt was made to discover what kind of meat was in the diet one-third of the cases had been eating more sweets than usual just before contracting the cold over one-half of the cases liked more than average salt pepper or other seasoning in their foods over one-half of the cases had had two or more colds during the preceding four months indicating it was decided, that those who have colds have a tendency to have them rather regularly.

The survey was conducted from December through the spring. Members of the club had printed questionnaires and when ever they came upon a pupil with a cold the victim was asked to fill out the blank and return it to the club. Answering the questionnaire was not compulsory.

The club was composed of Juniors of the Edison school and seniors at Harding and met twice a month while school was in session. Paul Bishop was president Ollin Hoisington was vice president Jacqueline M Vicker served as treasurer, and Irene Morgan was secretary. Avonelle Bailey was program chairman. All but Hoisington were graduated from Harding this month.

Mr. Average Citizen Soon To Learn Defense Is Costly

By IRVING PERLMETER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Mr Citizen who has a wife and one small child and earns $3,000 a year, figured today that he would nearly have to double his federal tax payments so that Uncle Sam could buy airplanes and other defense equipment.

Congress has tacked on an extra 10 per cent here and there with a few variations, but when Mr Citizen got out his pencil he found it added up unexpectedly. He calculated that his annual federal tax bill had been boosted from $27 to $40.20. This is the way he reached that figure.

He has never paid federal income tax heretofore. But since congress cut the exemption for a married man from $2,000 to $2,000 and added a 10 per cent surtax to former tax liabilities, he calculates he'll have to pay $13.20 next March.

The citizens go to a neighborhood theater and pay 55 cents apiece except for the child who gets in free. Under the old 40-cents exemption to the admissions tax there were no extras for the treasury, but now all admissions over 20 cents will be taxed at roughly 10 per cent and the citizens will pay about $4 tax in the next year on their weekly cinema.

Stiff Tax on Stiff Drinks

Mr Citizen figures he will buy three gallons of whisky and a barrel of beer a year for himself and friend. The federal whisky tax, at this rate used to cost him about $7 a year ($2.25 per gallon of 100 proof), but next year it will be over $8 ($3 per gallon of 100 proof).

His barrel of beer (about 300 bottles) formerly was taxed $5 and now it is $6.

Mr Citizen drives about 10,000 miles a year, using 500 gallons of gasoline. The government used to take 1 cent a gallon or $5. Now it wants 1½ cents a gallon or $7.50.

The old radio having worn out, Mr Citizen also is going to buy a $100 radio, on which the tax was $10 but is now $11.

Mr Citizen could have figured some more increases because congress boosted by 10 per cent most of its other excise taxes like those on automobiles, tires, oil, club dues, some toilet preparations and refrigerators.

More Tax on Cigarets

How much more he will pay in tobacco taxes depends on whether he is a cigaret smoker and if so the number of packs he uses. Congress upped the cigaret levy one-half cent per pack, or 25 cents per 1,000, leaving other tobacco taxes unchanged.

Mr Citizen is not the average American—his income is too large, for one thing, and some people may say he drinks too much—but he is typical of a considerable group of taxpayers.

The steepest increases were made in income taxes. Besides the cut from $2,500 to $2,000 in the married man's exemption the single man's exemption was reduced from $1,000 to $800. Surtax rates were hiked on incomes up to $100,000 and then a 10 per cent super tax was added to all other income taxes. The super tax also applies to corporations, whose rates were boosted a flat one per cent in each income category.

Thus, while a married man with one minor child and a $3,000 income will find his federal income tax jumped from nothing to $13.20 if his income were $14,400 the tax would rise from $807 to $1,080. And if his income were $52,400, it would soar from $9,335 to $14,927.

The increased income taxes, applying on income received during the current calendar year, are payable next year. Most of the other increases including those on tobacco and liquor, became effective July 1, 1940.

French Soldier with Foresight Heads New Order

By The Associated Press

A risky, handsome French soldier who calmly risked his professional neck five years ago to demand mechanization of the army brandished aloft today the standard of a free France, defying the government that bowed to Germany.

He is Charles De Gaulle, self-appointed head of a French national committee organized in London with British support to continue the war.

Although he is a godson of France's famous Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, De Gaulle a month ago was a mere colonel of infantry, notable primarily because of his 6-foot-2-inch height in an army whose officers don't often run so tall.

On May 25 Gen Maxime Weygand when he took over the already-punctured French defenses and started firing generals right and left remembered the young officer who had scoffed at the Maginot line and argued for tanks and armored cars and planes.

Result: De Gaulle was elevated to major general.

Paul Reynaud new premier of France knew De Gaulle had backed him in fact when he urged the chamber of deputies in 1935 to authorize mechanization of at least 10 army divisions.

On June 6 Reynaud made De Gaulle his special assistant in charge of war department matters as undersecretary of war in his cabinet.

On June 16 when Godfather Petain became premier De Gaulle kept his job.

Later he went to England ostensibly to confer on military matters.

Last Saturday night he broadcast an appeal to all Frenchmen to keep up the struggle against Germany and Sunday he announced his new committee of jurisdiction over all French citizens in Great Britain as nearest thing in existence to a "refugee government."

The French government which deaux removed him from the cabinet, dismissed him from the army and made him liable to court-martial (if he can get to France on a/m) as an example to other officers who share his fee.

FORMER GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA DIES

John Stuchell Fisher Stricken in Pittsburgh.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH June 25 — John Stuchell Fisher, the Indiana county (Pa) farm boy who studied his way to the governorship of Pennsylvania, died at his home today He was 73.

Fisher, a Republican, was governor for a four-year term starting in 1927.

During his administration he was thrust into national prominence by the three-year controversy over the election of William S. Vare, Philadelphia Republican, to the U S. senate in 1926. When Democrats brought charges of fraud in the 1926 primary—one of the states' "million dollar" elections—the senate refused the demands of Fisher and other Pennsylvania Republicans that Vare be seated Finally, in 1929 Fisher appointed to the vacancy Joseph R Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers association

Between farm chores Fisher had studied for a law career that interested him in politics

After his gubernatorial term expired in 1931 he retired from state politics and made his home in Pittsburgh He had not been well since undergoing an operation last September.

THE garden party planned by the All Arts and Searchlight Literary clubs of Prospect to be held Wednesday evening at Patton Place, the home of W. E. Watkins at Prospect, has been postponed until July, the committee announced today.

Members of the Sub Deb club, now disbanded, met for a reunion Saturday evening at Hotel Harding. The affair was in the form of a 7 o'clock dinner and later tables were arranged for cards. Tiny bottles of nail polish, costumed as "debs" were in the club colors of gold and black and held the place cards. The table centerpiece was yellow roses. Club members present were Mrs. Frank Purdy of Washington, D. C., Mrs. John Powell Jr., Mrs. John Guthrie, Misses Glenda Porter, Susan Haberman, Vivian Welmer, Ruth Emery, Mary Ann Young, Martha Van Atta and Jane Strauss. Mrs. Henry R. Stauffer, the club chaperone, was a guest. An award in bridge was won by Miss Welmer.

Arrangements for the dinner were in charge of Miss Strauss, Mrs. Powell, Miss Emery and Mrs. Guthrie. It was planned to make the reunion an annual affair.

A shower was given to Mrs. Henry Mahaffey, the former Frances Selter, by the Willing Workers Sunday school class at Agosta Methodist church Thursday night. Gifts were placed under a large umbrella decorated with pink and white streamers. Miniature umbrellas served as favors for the 28 guests. Games were played with prizes being awarded to Miss Betty Withrow and Miss Vivian Drake. Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Doubles for Mary and Noel Rehearse in the Plan to Outwit Leslie.

THERE was a silence that could be felt in my father's room when he had finished outlining his scheme for outwitting Jack Leslie. Then Lillian put a question.

"Suppose Leslie has men hidden near the rendezvous? But you've probably counted on that—and discounted it."

"I should be a poor leader if I failed to anticipate such a move," he answered. "On the roads the other side of the rendezvous, headed this way will be at least two cars filled with men. And I am sure Leslie will not try to win a losing fight. He figures, of course, that he holds the trump card, the secret of the hidden passage into the attic. He will go back, get all his men together, and either tonight or tomorrow night, probably the second—he will need time to perfect his plans—he will bring all of his force along the secret passage and into the trap I have prepared for him."

There was something so grim, so implacable in my father's voice that I could not repress a little shiver—not of sympathy for Leslie—he deserved none — but there is something deep inside me which balks at the idea of a trap for either man or beast.

"And now" — my father said with a little wave of his hand to Harry Underwood, "I give way to you. I should advise taking Mary first. Then while you're doing Noel, we'll have time to study her impersonation and detect flaws in it, if any. Her impersonator will of course have the harder job."

Impersonating Mary

"If you'll just sit over here in this corner, Watson," Harry said to the man in Mary's clothing, "I'll have Mrs. Veritzen walk up and down, turn around, and talk, all with the light falling full upon her, so you'll have a chance to study her."

"I'll stand, if you don't mind," Watson said as he took his place in the corner Mr. Underwood had indicated. "But there's one thing I want to know first. That's going to be the stickler, you know. I can do all the rest—easy."

Harry Underwood's resourcefulness did not fail him.

"You have so bad a cold," he said promptly, "that you cannot speak above a whisper. Get me?"

"Okay!" The man bent forward in a watchful attitude, and Mr. Underwood turned to Mary.

"Now jamble pie!" he adjured, grinning at her, and I knew he was trying to make light of a frightening situation, "strut your stuff! Be a nice little mannequin, and walk around, first alone, then with Noel. Here's a footstool, about the height of a running board, and this low chair is about the height of the car floor. Imagine you're entering a car. Remember to lower your head, so you won't bump it, and go over the gesture until I tell you to stop."

Mary Plays Mannequin

Mary obeyed his every direction meticulously, and went over them again and again while Harry Underwood watched the man who was to impersonate her. Finally Watson raised his hand.

"I've got it," he said. "No need of tiring her out."

"Do you want to go through the stuff now, or after I change your make-up?" Mr. Underwood asked.

"Afterward," Watson replied promptly. "I can be mulling everything over while you're fixing me up."

"Then," Mr. Underwood said to Mary, "If you sit here, and Watson here,"—he indicated two chairs in the line with each other, "I'll get to work."

He brought a small table to his side, and upon it spread the contents of his make-up box. Then, with intent glances at Mary, he began to manipulate Watson's face, while we all watched, fascinated by his skill. When he had finished, he turned both Mary and Watson around for our inspection.

"Well! What's the verdict?" he asked. "Do you think Leslie will be able to tell the difference, if the plan goes wrong, and he decides to get into the game himself?"

burg hospital for treatment of rib fractures and arm and face cuts. The girls were bruised.

Mr. and Mrs. Patten and the Myers family left here about 6 Sunday morning for a week's vacation at Algonac, Mich., Mr. Myers driving the car owned by Mr. Patten.

Mr. Myers said today they left early to avoid heavy traffic and that later in the day they were to have been joined at Algonac by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin K. Smith and children of South Vine street and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Kimbel of Baker street, all of whom planned to vacation at the Michigan resort.

Collide at Intersection

The Patten car was traveling north on Route 23. Mr. Myers said the car driven by Mrs. Ammon came from the west on an intersecting road and stopped at the approach to No. 23, but that as he neared the intersection Mrs. Ammon started to drive across. He said that because of a low cement bridge he could not swerve the car, but that he applied the brakes and skidded the car for from 20 to 40 feet. The Ammon car was overturned.

Two ambulances were called and the state highway patrol arrived to make an investigation. The Marion friends here, who had planned to leave later in the day, were notified by R. A. Garvin of 368 Summit street, who happened along at the scene of the accident a few minutes after it occurred. Mr. Smith took the Curtis ambulance to Perrysburg to return members of the Myers family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and family and Mr. and Mrs. Kimbel went to the cottage of Miss E. Christine Rieck at Rye Beach to spend the week, in lieu of the Michigan trip.

$44,256 Road Program Is Outlined by Commissioners

17 Miles To Get New Surface; 42 Miles To Be Retreated in Projects Now Planned.

A $44,256.81 surface treatment program for Marion county roads this summer was outlined today by the county commissioners in cooperation with County Engineer Paul H. Tozzer.

The 1940 program, involving 17.45 miles of entirely new surface treatment and 42.52 miles of retreatment, is slightly smaller than the 1939 program. Last year's program was estimated to cost around $50,000, but actually cost only $38,981.32.

The commissioners plan to advertise for bids in the very near future, the job going to the lowest and best bidder.

List Prepared

The list of roads to be treated and retreated was compiled by the commissioners from a list submitted by Engineer Tozzer. The commissioners reported they selected for treatment the roads which they considered in the greatest need of improvement.

Commissioners' Clerk J. A. Raub reported that unit bids will be taken probably on various types of bituminous materials. The estimated total cost is based on a price of 13 cents a gallon applied. However, the commissioners expect the cost to be considerably under the estimate. Such is usually the case.

The work will all be done in the next two or three months.

Engineer Tozzer is now preparing plans, specifications and advertising for bids.

Stone Roads in Program

The list of stone roads which will receive their first surface treatment follows, together with the length of the part to be treated:

Agosta - Meeker — 2,611 feet, $483.77.

Wildcat—10,407 feet, $2,250.50.

DeCliff-Big Island—24,324 feet, $6,008.96.

LaRue-Green Camp—9,441 feet, $2,042.28.

Newman - Cardington — 9,064 feet, $1,959.90.

Irvin - Shoots — 10,782 feet, $1,999.

Osmun — 9,636 feet, $1,787.90.

Marion-Williamsport — 16,051 feet, $3,180.88.

The list of roads to be retreated and the cost of each follows:

Bethlehem, five sections, $2,272.26; Linwood, two sections, $790.73; Campbell, two sections, $1,017.15; Hughes, one section, $862.04; streets in Vernon Heights, $560.05; Martel, six sections, $2,853.30; Marion-Wyandot county line road, part of section, $287; Marseilles-Galion, two sections, $1,066.99; Likens Chapel, one section, $589.40; Edison, two sections, $1,037.90; Firstenberger, five sections, $1,791.40; Pleasant Hill, two sections, $1,271.81; Wildcat, four sections, $1,057.98; LaRue-Prospect, five sections, $3,054.20; Owens, four sections, $1,480.92; Smeltzer, two sections, $510.47; Pole Lane, two sections, $826.82; Newman-Cardington, one section, $140.94; Somerlot-Hoffman, one section, $779.60; Dunbar, two sections, $1,338.98; Kenton-Galion, one section, $653.97.

Total cost of the new treatment program is $19,712.90 and of the retreatment program $24,543.91.

Former Marion Man, Now Publisher, Gets Honorary Degree at Kenyon

A man whose family history is closely connected with the early days of Marion, was among those to be awarded honorary degrees at the recent one hundred twelfth commencement of Kenyon college, according to a news report from Gambier, O.

He is Henry Johnson Fisher, who has become one of America's most prominent magazine and book publishers. He was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Head of McCall's and of Popular Science, member of the executive committee of Harper & Bros., of the board of governors of Yale university and a director of the Parent's Publishing associations, Mr. Fisher also is chairman of the board of the English-Speaking Union of the United States and is a trustee of Kenyon college.

Mr. Fisher now lives in Greenwich, Conn., and has offices in New York City.

Born in Marion, the son of W. B. Fisher and Kate E. Johnson Fisher, members of two of the county's oldest families, he is a nephew of Charles C. Fisher, dean of the Marion County Bar association, and is a second cousin of Henry A. True of 149 East Church street.

Educated in the Marion public schools, he went east and was graduated from Yale university. Since establishing himself in business in the east he has visited Marion only rarely.

His father was connected with the old McMurray Sulky Co. and his mother was the daughter of R. H. Johnson, a native of Richmond, Va., who came to Marion in 1842. Mr. Johnson was one of the organizers of the Marion County bank and was later its president until his death. Mr. Fisher's paternal grandfather was Dr. T. B. Fisher, a native of Franklin county who came to Marion in 1835, at the age of 25, and established himself as a physician. At the time Dr. Fisher came here there was an epidemic of milk disease and all of the physicians here had died of the disease, according to county historical records.

JUST AN ERROR

By United Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — There was quite a laugh when the assembly committee on unemployment insurance looked up the law governing jobless benefits. The original act of 1935 plainly said that the purpose of the new law was to assist "in the stabilization of employment conditions." But the 1939 act, as amended, was printed "unemployment" conditions. It was found that the inadvertent error slipped in when the act was amended in 1937 and was copied into the 1939 law.

Torchlight Time

This is the last of a series of four articles on old-time presidential campaigns of interest now because of the 1940 presidential campaign.

WASHINGTON — Republicans hope Philadelphia will bring them luck, as it did in 1900, when Teddy Roosevelt popped into the political picture.

At Philadelphia that time, they renominated President McKinley, "dependable custodian of the full dinner pail," and ran the young hero of San Juan hill with him to give the ticket comph.

William J. Bryan might have won the presidency then, if "Teddy" hadn't breezed throug the west preaching "sound nationalism." The Republican Roosevelt broke Bryan's record (569 speeches in 1896) traveling 21,209 miles, making 672 speeches.

Split Party

T. R.'s premier convention performance did not come, however, until 12 years later, in Chicago. Bounding off a train from New York, he flashed his "feeling bully" grin, waved his huge sombrero, and lunged into the fight that split the party.

Some Republicans called him a traitor, others hailed him as "a second St. Paul." Delegates fought and shouted. Dignified Elihu Root's address was interrupted by derisive guffaws. The Taft lines held firm, however, and the Roosevelt forces lost contest after contest over delegations.

The announcement, "California declines to cast her vote," heralded the big rift. Some 344 Roosevelt delegates didn't vote and Taft won easily on the first ballot.

Roosevelt backers held a separate convention that night and nominated the colonel with Hiram Johnson of California, as his running mate. And that fall, with Taft and Teddy splitting the Republican vote, Woodrow Wilson was elected president.

The 1916 Campaign

Came 1916. The Democrats named Wilson by acclamation. T. R. was thumping him, however, for "pussyfooting notes to Germany" on submarine activities. Handsome Warren G. Harding, the Republican keynoter, "pounded hard on patriotic generalities and urged Republican harmony." Progressives backed Roosevelt; but the convention nominated Charles Evans Hughes on the third ballot.

Progressives again nominated T. R., but he refused to run and publicly supported Hughes. Many progressives voted for Wilson then, and he rode to victory, largely on the slogan: "He Kept Us Out Of War."

One of the hundreds of cartoonists' impressions of Teddy Roosevelt—before he and the Republicans parted ways.

Movies by X-Ray Possible with High-Speed Tube

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — X-ray motion pictures have become a possibility with development of an ultra-high speed X-ray tube enabling the photographing of the inner structure of opaque objects moving at an exceedingly rapid rate or reacting to a strong sudden external force or blow.

Developed by Westinghouse engineers, the new glass tube makes possible the taking of pictures with an exposure time of a millionth of a second—less than one twenty-thousandth of the time required to blink an eye.

Already it has disclosed exactly what happens when a bullet plows through a block of wood, the football player kicks the ball or the golfer makes his drive. Tennis balls, lamp bulbs and many other objects have played parts in laboratory tests.

Dr. Charles M. Slack, one of the engineers who developed the tube, told the American physical society that it may presage a day when desirable and hitherto impossible tasks may be accomplished.

Machine and motor builders, for example, will be able to study internal strains in rapidly moving parts. Makers of sporting rifles, shotguns and ammunition may determine any slight deflecting of a bullet in its passage through a gun barrel or observe the distribution of shot.

Dr. Slack said conventional types of high speed X-ray equipment permitted exposure times little shorter than one-hundredth of a second and that even if the exposure were one-thousandth of a second, a hard-driven golf ball with an initial velocity of perhaps 300 feet per second would travel more than three inches during that time.

"Designed only for highly specialized work, the new tube nevertheless extends the possible usefulness of X-ray science into a wide new realm. It does jobs that conventional tubes can not and do not need to do, hence is designed to supplement existing X-ray sources rather than replace any of them," Dr. Slack said.

TUESDAY, JUNE 25 1940

Spotlight on Philadelphia

REPUBLICANS gathered in Philadelphia for the quadrennial conclave must share attention this year with war, a contrast with the usual convention atmosphere which was a kind of carnival diversion to break up the mid-summer doldrums. There are no doldrums to be broken up this summer.

A party convention is a strange and wonderful thing strange because it's a combination of all the tomfoolery and wisdom that go with popular government, wonderful because every time it happens it leaves all participants wondering what hit them yet they're always willing to go back for more.

The Republican party has momentous things to decide in its convention. When Democrats hold their convention they will have momentous things to decide, too. Sometimes the public loses sight of the fact that the kind of government it cherishes originates in major party conventions, which have no official status.

Men and issues are their products. Everything else is a byproduct, like the profit of the hotel keepers and eating house proprietors in convention cities. The country awaits a Republican standard bearer and the party's statement of principles.

France United

AT LAST there is only one political objective remaining in France—release from the humiliating terms of surrender imposed by its enemy. Germany has fallen heir to the problem which France assumed at Versailles. How to keep a proud nation helpless.

The French tried various expedients. They imposed crushing peace terms. They formed a complicated network of alliances and buffer states. They adopted a policy of non cooperation in moves to restore Germany's sense of dignity. On occasion they even tried friendship.

But Germany refused to remain weak. Popular restlessness created a breeding ground for revolutionary movements. One of these movements resulted in Hitlerism dedicated openly to the proposition that Germany should have revenge.

Unable to meet this new situation due largely to the schemes it had devised with a view to meeting it some day the French stood by helplessly while Germany prepared to take revenge. In desperation it pinned its hopes on a perfect defense. When the defense proved imperfect France cracked. Almost overnight all its internal squabbles, plots and differences were made meaningless by the great reality of defeat at the hands of Germany—and what was most humiliating the necessity of coming to terms with Italy which France could have beaten to a standstill if it had begun the job last September.

Perhaps Germany will be able to keep France helpless. It might even be able to keep France from resenting helplessness but no one is able to imagine Germany forgetting rancor long enough to let its crushed opponent dream of anything but revenge. The famous railroad coach which has become the Franco-German symbol of dog eat dog may be the scene of another presentation of the terms of armistice when the exhausted belligerents of Europe have had time to catch their breath again.

Waiting

EMOTIONALISM may be worn threadbare but what there is left warms the hearts of all men who can bear to think of Britain's plight.

The British have no remaining doubts about the mechanical butchery that has been prepared for them. It will strike from the sea from the air and from the land across the English channel.

They have no chance of preventing it but only a long chance—a very slim chance—of proving so hard to destroy that somehow they will be able to limp away from their rendezvous with death.

In the meantime they are waiting.

They are next on the list of things to be destroyed.

Milestone

THESE are times that try men's souls. Some things aren't what they seemed to be. Some things that seemed to be something else aren't. It's tough.

But at long last Martin L. Davey's status in Ohio politics is clear. He is an emergency. This was tacitly admitted when a Republican governor called a special session of the legislature to separate the state and national ballots in November to keep Mr. Davey from riding into the governorship on a possible Democratic landslide.

The admission became public information when Rep. Herman E. Werner of Akron, a Republican, said in debate that an emergency clause was attached to the ballot dividing bill because any time Martin L. Davey's on the ticket It's an emergency (sic). A general impression among all Ohio Republicans and a great many Ohio Democrats at last is made official.

News Behind the News

Taft and Dewey Forces Reported Joining Hands in Effort To Stop Willkie.

By PAUL MALLON

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—Efforts to get the Taft and Dewey forces consolidated have proceeded further than either of the contestants can afford to admit.

Delicate dickering is in the hands of a friend of both sides and the titular head of the party, Alf Landon. He started several days back laying the groundwork for what seems to be a necessary stratagem to stop the rising whirlwind Wendell Willkie.

Paul Mallon

From the outside two obstacles could be seen. Both the Dewey and Taft forces have thought they had more strength than impartialists believed they could muster. Only a test vote in the convention could conclusively settle how respective estimates of the power for as hard to strategize because Taft is relying on secondary pledges to be developed during the ballot (that is from the Hoover and other forces) while Dewey's primary campaign gave him maximum strength for the start. This no one could be sure has true would be settled in some sort of convention procedure prior to the actual balloting. But if they let their forces evaporate down on balloting they would then have to face the full fury of the Willkie unified or divided.

A less formidable obstacle was the disinclination of the Dewey people to be satisfied with the vice presidency alone. Various Dewey leaders would have to be cared for in any combination that would put him in the second slot.

Stassen Speech

Stassen wrote it himself.

The young keynoting governor from Minnesota has not let everyone know it, but he had a brisker and somewhat different speech all written when the Nazis invaded the Netherlands. It was a composite picture of the views of Republican leaders which he solicited in person and by mail prior to May 10. It was cemented in solid anti war foundation.

Stassen had to rewrite that earlier speech and he did it practically alone, consulting only those outstanding party leaders who are NOT candidates.

He has found he gets along better that way. His friends all told him to eliminate his serious views from his unpublished speech to the Gridiron club last winter. He disregarded their advice and finds today that the serious parts of his speech are the ones remembered.

When you see Stassen wham-ming the Democrats in the movies, don't look for any delegates in the background. He staged a special preview of his speech for all the news reels at 4 p. m. last Saturday in order that its presentation to the public in the theaters could not be too long delayed.

Stop Hitler, Too

The Republicans are looking for a man not only to stop Roosevelt but Hitler as well.

The result is the delegates and leaders are approaching their Philadelphia job with more open mindedness than I have ever seen at a national convention of any political party. Prevailing political opinion here as in Washington is that President Roosevelt will seek a third term only through a proxy (possibly Senator Jim Byrnes or Hull) because of the physical responsibility the job of the next four years will entail. But everyone can see the job will be to organize and lead aggressively but carefully for armed peace to guarantee the safety of this hemisphere against dictatorial aggression.

This automatically eliminates most of the dark horses and minor candidates. They are going through usual motions of declaring from the top of the Benjamin Franklin statue here that they are out for first place and will take nothing less.—But the bronze Franklin only smiles and says nothing. That old gentleman who knew human nature better than any other of our statesmen also believed in harmless publicity.

Hoover

Nearly every Republican here is Hoover's friend and someone else's delegate.

If the delegates were to vote their regard instead of their convictions the former President would have the nomination. As it is the Hoover workers (meaning mainly his secretarial associate Lawrence Richey who is doing a lot of thing on his own unbeknown to the chief) are trying to hold down the Hoover vote for the early ballots. This is wise strategy. Early exposure of Hoover's maximum support perhaps 100 delegates could only be an empty compliment. A total gradually rising until something like the sixth ballot would show strength at the right time if there is ever to be a right time for Mr. Hoover.

Helpful Hobby

Secret of Hoover's personal friendships is that from the start of his career he did nice little things for people in an unostentatious way not letting them know about his help until they found out later from other sources. In this way he has secured a start for many young men in many non political walks of life. It has been his only hobby.

To Grab and To Hold

Status of Half Earth's Land Made Uncertain by War

ADOLF HITLER owns a world globe. It is hard to imagine him looking at it hopefully right now perhaps with Benito Mussolini peering over his shoulder.

To the victors belong the spoils. That's Rule No. 1 in the aggressor's code. It's why wars are fought. Everything that can't be defended can be taken. That's Rule No. 2.

It explains what happened to Ethiopia to Albania to Austria Poland Czechoslovakia Danzig, Memel southeastern Finland Norway the Netherlands Belgium and northern France. Germany Italy and Russia all have had a hand in the grabbing. The latter as though making up for lost time has been grabbing territory on the eastern shore of the Baltic while attention was centered on the latest climax of aggression in France.

Next on Hitler's grab list is Great Britain seat of an empire of 13 320 000 square miles and 495 339 000 inhabitants held together by tradition commerce and the British navy.

The French empire held together the same way has an area of 4 684 142 miles and a population of 71 269 000. Population of the Netherlands East Indies alone is more than 60 000 000. In the Belgian Congo an area as large as the 15 southern states of the United States there are more than 10 000 000 inhabitants.

DISPOSITION of colonial possessions if Germany makes a clean sweep is a question the war has raised but not answered. The United States looking to its own hemispheric security has declared that possessions in the new world cannot be transferred from one power to another. Japan has taken a proprietary tone about the Netherlands East Indies. Italy through the bellowing voice of Mussolini would have something to say about division of loot in Africa though whether Hitler would care to listen is doubtful.

The fate of human beings in every corner of the earth teeters in the balance of the war in Europe. Great Britain France the Netherlands and Belgium have been ambitious and successful empire builders and administrators. Two thirds of a page of fine type is needed to enumerate the parts of the British empire alone which range from Ascension Islands with 188 inhabitants to India with a teeming population of 350 000 000.

Bigger than all of France is the French island of Madagascar—with an area of 241 000 square miles and a population of 3 797 000. Reunion Island lying in the Indian ocean 400 miles east of Madagascar is an integral part of the French republic with a senator and two deputies in parliament. France has a peppering of small islands in the Pacific and French Indo China on the Asiatic mainland.

On the continent of Africa the French belt of influence runs from French Morocco directly opposite Spain to French Equatorial Africa an area of 4 272 685 square miles. Some of this area came to France in the Treaty of Versailles. Algeria and Tunisia on the Mediterranean are coveted by Italy. So is Corsica lying north of Sardinia in the Mediterranean.

EVERY student of geography remembers that pink denotes British influence on a map of the world—and that a vast portion of the map is pink. The sun never sets on the British empire.

British pink runs through Africa from top to bottom. It stretches across the bottom of Asia through the East Indies to Australia and New Zealand. It is a solid belt across North America and covers an area of 12 515 square miles in the West Indies.

Names of all the colonial possessions whose status has been, is being or threatens to be made uncertain by the rule of violence which Hitler has imposed on the world read like the index of a travel guide. In bulk the areas constitute approximately half of the earth's land surface.

While it is preposterous even to imagine that Germany and Italy have notoriously poor colonial administrators on the basis of their record would be able to do anything with more than a part of the tottering empires assuming they ever have the chance the two states are in position to increase their empires enormously.

There is only one handicap. They are bound by the same rules that have bound empire builders before. They can take everything they can get and they can keep everything they can hold. It's not easy. If anyone's inclined to wonder why the answer is being found in current newspapers. Mere area and even huge populations do not necessarily produce the strength it takes to hold the pieces of empire together. Nor are envy and violence enough to knock them apart.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, June 25 1930.

The contracting firm of P. Drake & Sons was preparing to start work soon on resurfacing of Main street from George to Columbia following an award by the city planning commission at the firm's bid of $58 447.

Miss Jessie Carter daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of Gallipolis and Theodore A. Bintz of Fremont, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bintz of Marion were married at St. Mary Catholic church by Rev. Father William J. Spickerman.

Mrs. Christine Cleveland 48 of Ballentine avenue, died at City hospital.

Announcement was made of the award of two prizes to Marion Eagles lodge groups that attended the state convention in Newark. They went to the women's degree team which placed second in a contest and the drum corps of Buckeye Aerie which was one of three to share equally in prizes for the best-appearing corps.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Ballentyne of North State street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday June 25 1920.

Announcement was made at Bucyrus that a woman held there for two months on a charge of horse stealing was to be released after authorities decided the evidence they had prepared for her trial was insufficient to prove any guilt.

The Y. M. C. A. campaign for funds to operate in the coming 12 months went over the top by a margin of $192.25, with pledges totalling $21 309.25. Frank Glosser headed the executive committee in charge of the drive.

A news dispatch from Washington said that soldier legislation would be an important part of Senator Harding's speech of acceptance of the Republican nomination for the presidency. Senator Harding conferred with Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. and later devoted several hours at his home in Washington to preparation of the acceptance address. Colonel Roosevelt after his conference with the senator, announced 'Senator Harding's ideas as to the policy of this country when he is elected president are such as every young forward-looking man may indorse in full. Under leadership of the senator we are going out to meet the issues squarely, to make a fighting campaign without fighting clothes on.' The news dispatch called attention to Senator Harding's pre-convention position of urging fair and just compensation for ex-soldiers. News dispatches also indicated that Senator Harding planned to keep his campaign expenses to a low figure pointing out that his pre convention campaign was financed by small contributions voluntarily offered by his friends and in a large part by his fellow-townsmen of Marion. He urged the Republican campaign managers to keep down general campaign expenses and to invite small contributions. Weary after a busy round of conferences following his nomination, Senator Harding broke away from his office for an afternoon of golf with Senators Hitchcock Elkins and Hale. A news dispatch regarding the afternoon of golf reported that Senators Harding and Hitchcock were joked by their colleagues because Hitchcock is a contender for the Democratic nomination for president, but he is one of the senator's best friends. In Marion it was announced that Senator Harding would be formally notified of his nomination at the Chautauqua pavilion in Garfield park. The choice of the location was announced at a meeting of the Marion Civic association. Meanwhile other preparations for handling crowds of campaign visitors to Marion continued with the city civil service commission holding an examination to select additional patrolmen for the police department. Plans also were begun for repairing and marking all of the principal highways leading into Marion before the July 22 notification date. Edward K. Clark of Marion and Charles Mader of Chillicothe started a movement to assemble all the living members of the Citizens band of which Senator Harding was a member for a reunion here on notification day.

Compulsory Service

Registration, Selection of Manpower for Defense Proposed.

WHEN President Wilson asked congress to declare war on April 2 1917 he laid down the basic principle of involuntary military service in the United States.

'The immediate addition to the armed forces of the United States already provided by law,' he said, 'should in my opinion be chosen upon the principle of universal liability to service.'

On May 18 the President called the draft a landmark in our progress. He explained it was in no sense a conscription of the unwilling but rather selection from a nation which has volunteered in mass.

A bill introduced in the senate last Thursday June 20 by Sen. Burke of Nebraska and on Friday by Rep. Wadsworth of New York would do for the United States immediately what conscription did in 1917 after the United States had declared war. That is it would cause registration selection and training of manpower with a view to developing a strong national defense.

The bill is sponsored by the recently formed National Emergency Committee of the Military Training Camps association of the United States. Although nothing official has yet been forthcoming from the army and navy its officers are known to believe that only a carefully planned program of selective compulsory training would give land and naval forces a trained personnel in advance of actual conflict. The idea that voluntary enlistment can solve defense problems has been abandoned. The association is headed by Tom R. Wales of Chicago as president and Robert H. Jamison of Cleveland as chairman of the executive committee.

ESSENTIAL features of the bill are:

1. Registration of males between 18 and 65 with certain exceptions set forth in the bill.

2. Division of registrants into two groups (a) Men between 21 and 45 liable for eight months military training and for service (b) men between 18 and 21 and 45 and 65 liable for home defense training and service in or near their communities.

3. Selection by lot of men between 21 and 45 for training and service with due regard for needs of industry and agriculture dependency and other factors.

The proposal differs from World war conscription in that it covers more than military and naval service. The first World war conscription bill applied only to men between 21 and 31 which would be the majority age group affected by the current proposal. A second bill extended the draft age in the World war down to 18 and up to 45.

TOTAL registration represented 4% per cent of the entire male population. Seventy per cent were physically disqualified. Of those between 21 and 31 it was found that 46 per cent were married. Negroes were 10 per cent of the total number of registrants. Aliens were 16 per cent and were subject to draft if they had applied for citizenship and were not classed as enemy aliens. American citizens in Great Britain were subject to the draft there and British citizens were subject to the draft here.

Draftees were arranged in five classes each class minutely subdivided. First group subject to call—Class 1 A—was composed of single men without dependent relatives. Then came married men or fathers who had habitually failed to support their families. Then married men dependent on their wives for support.

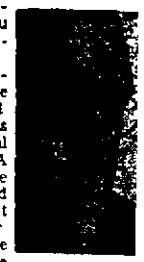
Husband Control

Old Doctor Prescribes Three Easy Approaches for Winding Them Around Little Fingers

By DAMON RUNYON

MISS CORABUL HINCHBECK,
Miami Beach Florida.

Dear Miss Hinchbeck: In replying to your letter of recent date asking us for a few hints on how to manage a husband, first let us offer our congratulations on your impending nuptials. We assume you are contemplating same, else you would not be seeking the information requested.



Damon Runyon

There are only three methods to be considered in the matter of managing a husband. Your choice of these methods must be based on a careful study of the individual. A method that would make the management of one husband a simple proposition might not fit another at all. However we feel sure that one of the three we mention will serve your purpose. They are:

1. The eye
2. The breakumdown
3. The softenup

The eye is a species of optional bulldoze be used on husbands of timorous nature. It's the simplest of all methods and requires the least effort after a brief period of training the husband. It consists merely of a steady and chillingly penetrating gaze—what you might call a steely glare.

THE EYE should be practiced before a mirror for some weeks prior to marriage. One acquired the knack of the eye is rarely lost. It is most imprudent to experiment with the eye on the intended husband before marriage. It might tend to frighten him away. Save it for the next day.

The great advantage of the eye is that it eventually eliminates the necessity for the spoken word of remonstrance or reproof. In the beginning it may have to be accompanied by a few sentences but after the husband becomes well schooled just one steely glance usually suffices.

The breakumdown method is so named because of its effect in pulverizing husband resistance especially husbands with easily upset stomachs and bad cases of nerves. It involves considerable emotional effort and even more practice than the eye. The breakumdown requires dissolving into tears on short notice.

We understand the movies have a simple method of producing tears by the use of some form of glycerine the recipe for which you may perhaps obtain by writing to Mr. Gregory Lacava the movie director care Dave Chasen Thursday Night Hollywood Calif. We are reliably informed that Mr. Lacava always keeps his actresses use glycerine when he wants tears. We hope and trust this statement will dispel rumors that Mr. Lacava secures the lachrymose effect by kicking 'em on the ankles.

IT IS WELL to accompany the tears with a swift disappearance into a bedroom and a prodigious slamming of the door behind you. Lock same and then issue audible sobs as the husband pounds on the door and implores you to look here darling please don't cry. The result of this method is to cause the husband's storm to throw up-ups and so to frazzle his nerve system he will think not twice but 20 times before he does anything to bring about an exhibition display of this nature.

If the husband is of exceptionally stern fiber and hard heart and not subject to the eye or the breakumdown you must have recourse to the softenup. This may be a long and tedious process. The idea is gradually to reduce the granite of his nature to the consistency of a wet sponge—to soften him up. Hence the name. The method is applied through apparent admiration and flattery sometimes known as the oil.

You must keep telling him he is a great guy and accept all his opinions on all subjects as the judgment of a sage. Listen carefully while he tells you what is wrong with this country. Agree readily to all his wishes. Tell him you do not believe there is another man in the world who keeps his age and figure as well. A few caresses are in order from time to time. Look well to his feeding. A farmer once told us that it is easier to herd a fat porker than a razorback.

UNDER the softenup treatment the most adamant disposition may become pliable but Miss Hinchbeck let us tell you something. Unless you have made commitments from which there is no retreat we think you would be wise in picking a husband susceptible to the eye or even the breakumdown in preference to one who calls for the softenup. We violate no confidence in informing you that we know ladies who have been working for years on husbands of the granite type and have yet to make a dent in them.

With best wishes we beg to remain
Yours truly
Dr. Runyon

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT DODDS

Jonathan Dayton was the youngest member of the federal Constitutional convention—only 27 years old—and throughout the convention sat beside the oldest member of the ratifying body Benjamin Franklin.

Dayton for whom the city of Dayton is named held title to 250 000 acres between the Big and Little Miami rivers.

He favored the purchase of the Louisiana Territory in 1803 was active in the development of the west and was interested in the projected canal around the falls of the Ohio river.

Dayton was a friend of Aaron Burr and would have joined Burr in his nefarious empire building scheme but for ill health. Even though he did not actually join the plot, Dayton was indicted for high treason in 1807, but the charge was later withdrawn. The incident ended his political career.

Speed too great for existing traffic conditions causes nine out of every 10 deaths in automobile accidents in the United States.

Hired by the city's Better Housing League six housekeepers are helping Cincinnati's unemployed families with home management and housing problems.

Molotov, the name by which the world knows the prime minister of Russia, is the Russian word for "hammer." Molotov's real name is Vlacheslav V. Skriabin.

Fight for Ballots On Full Blast

their p ace appeals for votes

Supporters of Sen Robert A Taft and Thomas E Dewey worked fe erishly to nail down their pledged delegates against inroads claimed by the forces of Wendell L Willkie, New York utility executive

A spokesman for Senator Taft asserted that the Willkie boom had actually struck a snag and was slowing down An anti-Willkie statement come from eight midwest members of the house of representatives They said the party would have to stand on the record its members had made in congress and that Willkie could not conform to that record

Can't Find Willkie Votes

Dewey told reporters it had been difficult for him to find where the reported Willkie support had been largely translated into delegates

Willkie lieutenants nevertheless kept their claim of first-ballot strength of about 100 votes and predicted a majority after a few ballots They said no effort was being made to get first-vote pledges from delegates previously committed to other candidates

Gov Ralph Carr of Colorado he told aides a few hours earlier that his state delegation was wide open was added to those who will second Willkie's nomination

Another element nice to make ing itself felt in the presidential contest John W Hughes of Massachusetts estimated that Herbert Hoover had six votes in that delegation Other delegates are reported for the former president

Many important offices in the Hoover administration are on the scene and the former president arrive today to deliver a convention speech at 8 p m in an his advocates hope will give the flagging enthusiasm needed to lure him into the nomination

Rep Joseph Martin of Massachusetts was to speak at his invitation as temporary chairman this morning

Stassen Urges Unity

In Governor Stassen's keynote text night the 33-year-old governor told the crowded convention hall that these times call for a frank approach to problems if democracy is to live

We must have a united people with each citizen willing to make sacrifices and ready to stand shoulder to shoulder in the interests of national defense he said

For too long a time, Stassen declared

We have wasted millions and millions of dollars on Pork-barrel-ites and Florida canals while neglecting needed defenses For too long a time our leaders have strutted down the avenues of the world jauntily knocking chips off shoulders without even preparing to raise our arms in self-defense'

The audience gave loud applause when he termed the cabinet nomination of Henry L Stimson and Frank Knox prominent Republicans, a politically timed appointment on the eve of this convention' and one by which the President made an eleventh hour confession of failure in his national defense administration

'We are pleased that the prospect of our convention caused this sudden improvement over New Deal incompetence and it is only regrettable that we cannot change the entire cabinet and the man who heads it with equal abruptness

Criticizes Training Plan

Stassen criticized the administration's proposal for compulsory national training, along with a wide variety of New Deal actions When he asked if the nation dare continue for the next four years under such leadership the crowd roared back No

He denounced fifth column activities and said they reached into the United States capitol In dealing with them he said first and foremost there must be the determination that no one supporting Communism Nazism or Fascism shall be permitted on the public payrolls of the nation

The New Deal cannot lead America on the new front with which it must face the world the young Republican asserted

It is a responsibility and a challenge to the Republican party to furnish the leadership and the program to defend this nation that we cherish he declared

The saddest chapter of the last four years has been that the national administration, instead of keeping its eyes statesmanlike upon the welfare of the people of this nation has turned its political gaze upon a third term

Urging the convention to present the people with a program and a presidential candidate worthy of their support Stassen quoted words of George Washington spoken in Philadelphia If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
Salvaged Again

JAN was settled as comfortably as cramped space permitted on the narrow couch beside Lance's feet in the drawing room compartment on the West Coast limited.

"Jan," Lance murmured, his face both meek and weak. "I'd like you to read the special air mail letter I had from Rose yesterday. It's under my pillow."

"How are you feeling, dear?" she asked, reaching under his head, observing the new lines of pain in his thin face.

"Better, Jan, he says I'm going to walk again. Maybe a long time with crutches, but eventually walk. I hoped but I never really believed—"

She saw tears in the hollows of his cheeks. Swiftly, she leaned to kiss them, then sat back, pretending absorption in the letter. It was surprisingly short and very much to the point. Johnny, Rose wrote, had a grand new job in New York. They were leaving at once for the east. The prospect of success had changed him. They had decided really to make a go of their marriage and they had at last fallen deeply in love. She wanted Lance to know she was terribly fond of him and of Jan and hoped they would always be good friends.

Carefully she folded the sheet of paper and tucked it back into the envelope. One load lifted, she reflected. But the heaviest load never would be lifted: her hopeless love for Derek. Certainly he'd never forgive her the tea party escapade. She supposed she should be sorry to lose his friendship, even if it was founded on gratitude, but she wasn't. She wanted his love or nothing at all.

Lance interrupted her forlorn thoughts. "If this letter had arrived even a week ago, I would have felt myself mortally wounded." A wisp of a laugh parted his lips. "But in the hospital, when I was half-conscious and still hazy from anesthetic, I wished over and over that Norma was there to hold my hand and coddle me and sit beside me with her placid knitting. Do you think there's a chance she'll have me, Jan? I mean, for life?"

"She would gladly have married you this summer, wheelchair and all," Jan said sharply. "But you fell off the deep end over Rose again and Norma knew it and I don't know what she'll have to say now."

"I'll be so penitent, so humble—and if she'll give me time."

Doctor Murray tapped on the door and came in, his rosy face as delighted as if he had just won an Olympic Championship. "Do you know," he demand, "that foreign visitors don't see America at all when they whirl dizzily about your famed Manhattan and return home without even crossing to New Jersey? I owe you youngsters a debt of gratitude for persuading me to vacation west with you."

"We owe you the larger debt of gratitude," Jan said gratefully.

She slipped out while he removed the dressings from Lance's knees and sought the Western Union operator in the Club car. Her gaminish smile came back for a moment as she wrote these words to Norma:

Put on your new bright bonnet and hitch old Dobbin to the sleigh. For your man is recovered and you had better set your wedding day.

Then Jan went on through the car to the observation platform and watched the steel rails dissolve into distance. She told herself she must get a firmer grip on herself before she reached Sea Tide again; also she reminded herself how lucky she'd been that the magazine editor liked her and had ordered more sketches and referred her to an excellent agent who could dispose of extra work.

The dear, good doctor had not yet presented his bill and, she had reason to suspect, never would, and she had not been obliged to touch Norma's generous gift of money nor would she now tell Lance. It wasn't good, she reflected, for a man to feel too indebted to a woman, even when he loved her, and perhaps it was worse when he didn't love her. It did something hurtful to his ego, she supposed, she didn't quite know what.

Frank and Norma met them in the early morning at the station in Los Angeles. At Jan's urging, Doctor Murray decided to stay two or three days at Sea Tide. By then, he said, a competent registered nurse could do all that needed to be done for Lance.

Before the doctor left to catch his boat out of San Francisco, Lance and Norma announced, with practically delirious ecstasy, that they would be married the moment Lance could stand up with the aid of crutches.

'He's Come Back'

It was the kind of an October day which had everything. The calm ocean reflected the clear, bright blue of the sky; the beneficent yellow sun beamed on surf-sunners and surf-bathers. It was autumn elsewhere, but is was still summer at Sea Tide.

Jan straggled upon the roof with Neptune and opened, for the first time in many months, the chest which held her cherished marines. She scrutinized them one by one and decided they weren't too bad to hang around in her bedroom. She'd been home two weeks now and it was high time she took an interest in something.

In a small partition to one side she found her binoculars. She touched them fondly, sadly, thinking of the day so long ago they had found Derek for her. And before him, Neptune. To find a bit of salvage in those days had been such a splendid adventure.

Still holding them in her right hand she advanced to the parapet and gazed out at the water. Even with her naked eye she could perceive the trim, sea-going lines of a yacht far out.

Startled by the sound of the trap door being pushed up, she turned to see Franks' cropped brown head protruding above the opening.

"Hey, Jan," he called. "Take a look out to sea with your glasses. Something out there that might interest you."

"Come on up," she invited and lifted her binoculars. Sure enough, something floated on the water about two or three miles offshore. A second later she perceived it must be a person, for whoever it was waved its arms in wild wigwags.

"Why don't you make a rescue?" she demanded of Frank in astonishment. "It's a person signalling for help!"

"Not my kind of help," Frank grinned, filling his pipe complacently. "It happens to be a man and he made me promise not to rescue him. I guess he's sort of counting on you."

Jan clutched his arm, her eyes wild, her face unbelieving.

"Derek! Oh, Frank, it's Derek! He has come back to Sea Tide!"

He nodded. "Derek it is."

"I won't go," she said. "Why, this is the most ridiculous stunt I ever heard of. Who does he think he is, floating about in oceans like a—a whale. He can just swim in when he gets good and tired of salt water!"

'One Less Nuisance'

Yet her hands shook when she lifted up the glasses again. He had stopped waving now and seemed to be drifting further out. He must be crazy. There was no doubt about it.

Frank said with casual indifference. "You're perfectly right, Jan. Anybody can see the man is a fool. Let him drown, who cares? Just one less nuisance in the world."

"Well, I won't go," she said, so consequently she put down the glasses and leaped for the ladder and tore out of the house and down the pier as fast as her legs would travel.

She rolled up the cuffs of her blue jeans, shoved the sleeves of her sweatshirt above her elbows and stepped into the boat. After two or three experimental putt-putts, the motor turned over much more smoothly than her heart and she cast off.

In truth, she thought, trembling, she was one person privileged to see history repeat itself! For once more black eyes looked at her from the water and a red, wet head came close to her grasping fingers. It was uncanny.

"Derek Knowles, you get into this boat!" she ordered. "You're crazy!"

He hooked his elbows over the side of the boat, tipping it into jeopardy, and declared: "Of course I'm mad, Puss. I refuse to get into your boat until you swear you love me and promise to marry me! And also promise never to run away from me again!"

I won't cry, she thought, and immediately the tears tumbled down her cheeks. "I promise you—you idiot!" she choked out.

Gasping, grinning, dripping water, he clumbed into the boat and caught her in his arms. "You wouldn't claim me," he said, "so I'm claiming you. There ought to be some law about salvage claiming its finder."

"What about Lenore?" she demanded.

"Oh, so that's it," he nodded wisely. "I was right. You are a jealous minx. Seriously, honey, when I met her again at the beach here I knew I didn't want her any more than I wanted the Brooklyn Bridge and honey, that tea party stunt was a wow! I'll dry up and crumble into martyr's dust if I can't have you around to make me laugh. Think you can stand me the rest of your life?"

In the middle of a very salty kiss she struggled to say, "I love you—you're all wet, you'll catch pneumonia! Oh, Derek!"

When, after the world stopped spinning and the boat stopped rocking, he let her go, he said contentedly, "See that yacht out there? It's yours. The Captain is waiting to marry us and we're going to the end of the world and back again an then we'll buy a piano and build a house around it and—"

"Find a suitable bride for Neptune," she finished.

The End.

let's cooperate to make a safer Marion

Harmless enough is the chance meeting of these two young women, apparently homeward bound after a shopping trip.

Anxious to take advantage of the opportunity to chat for a while, the diminutive blond leaves the sidewalk and starts over, intent on reaching her friend and glancing neither right nor left as she walks rapidly toward the other side.

Bearing down on his unintended victim before he has time to realize it, the motorists slams on the brakes in an attempt to avoid the collision. A quick stop is not quick enough and packages fly as the pedestrian topples.

Thrown over the fender and hurled to the street unconscious, the woman is immediately surrounded by a throng—a typical scene on the streets of any city, where pedestrians are killed and injured through careless walking.—Washington Star Staff Photos, with co-operation of the American Automobile Association.

"It's Seldom You Save Time . . . When You Are A Jay Walker"

Pedestrians are prone to condemn the motorist and bewail the fact that they don't have an even break for safety in the streets. But let one get behind the wheel of an automobile and you'll see a complete reversal of opinion. In most of the precious articles the errors of the motorists have been cited---so let's get behind the wheel and see what the man in the automobile has to put up with.

"Jay walkers" are the worst offenders. Regardless of whether or not they "jay walk" carefully, they present a problem to the motorist, and in most instances they aren't careful or they would go to the corner to cross. The above picture shows what can and often does happen to the jay-walker so why not take advantage of stop streets and traffic lights that are installed for your safety. If none are available---go to the corner regardless---that's where the motorist is expecting you.

This Is the Fourth of a Series of Messages Devoted to Safety. It Is Hoped That These Messages Will Inspire All to Be More Careful . . . and to Help Prevent Accidents!

Feller and Indians Jump on Yankees, 7 - 1, Boost Lead to Two Games

Bob Hurls 7-Hitter in 11th Win; World Champs 9 Tilts in Rear.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the world champion New York Yankees went west literally, a couple of weeks ago they also "went west" figuratively

There doesn't seem to be any use waiting any longer for them to come home because they've gone to that place from which champions seldom come back

Their epitaph was written last night in a score 7 to 1

That was the margin of the Cleveland Indians victory a seven-hit effort by Bob Feller for his 11th triumph of the season

Eighth Loss

That also was the eighth loss in nine games for the champs who used to whip through the west like a scourge

They were four games out of first place when they set sail westward today they are nine

A lot of things are wrong such as Joe DiMaggio hitting less than 300 for the first time in his life and in addition the Yanks have some worthy competition for the first time in years

Cleveland seems to have benefitted by getting the Indians discontent out in the open instead of fermenting in secret and last night's victory was the 11th in 17 games since the upheaval against Manager Ossie Vitt

They backed Feller with an 11-hit attack in which everyone except Ken Keltner participated Feller himself got a single and batted in two runs to help humili ate three Yankee pitchers They scored in four of the eight innings in which they went to bat

Al Milnar already having 10 victories was nominated to face the Yankees today

Two Ahead Now

The outcome increased Cleveland's distance over the second place Detroit Tigers to two full games The Tigers and most other major league teams were rained out yesterday The frolic at Cleveland was threatened all day by showers and delayed by more rain for half an hour after the lights were turned on But 46 837 fans defied the weather and were rewarded

The only other game to escape was at St Louis where the Browns battered the Philadelphia Athletics 9 4 with a 12 hit assault that included four home runs Two of these were by Walt Judnich one was by Harlond Clift with two on and the fourth by Don Heffner With this aid Elden Auker had an easy time bagging the victory on nine hits
